The employment of petitioner s trade mark being unlawful, the fact that it was in use had no legal value. Moreover, respondents registered their trade mark on October 26th, 1909, and had since used it for their boot cream, and therefore respondents registration preceded that of petitioner. Reasons. When a person finds, according to the provisions of Article 2 of the Trade Mark Law, that his interests are affected by another person using a similar or identical trade mark for the same goods-, the former is an interested party to the registration of the latter s trade mark, and can file an application for its invalidation. Respondents contention that petitioner has no interest with regard to the registration of respondents trade mark, and consequently has no right to bring forward his...
