THE LATITUDES OF SILENCE: A VOYAGE ACROSS THE PACIFIC OCEAN (PAPERBACK)

Trafford Publishing, Canada, 2009. Paperback. Book Condition: New. 211 x 137 mm. Language: English . Brand New Book. What does a man do when he loses himself in the corporate jungle? He buys a thirty-two-foot boat and sails 10,000 miles across the Pacific Ocean. The Latitudes of Silence is not just an onboard journal describing the physical journey, but is author Christian Tirtirau s honest account of an inner journey through life as well. Beginning in March of 2007, Tirtirau and friends, Flavio and Dino, board the Nerissa K in San Diego, California, to begin an estimated eight-month journey. They understand that an ocean voyage means calculated risks, some adventure, and an unpredictable outcome. They also know that a voyage at sea is hard on the body, hard on the mind, and hard on the heart. The Latitudes of Silence describes this adventure-from crossing the equator, to battling the elements, and includes their experiences in tropical locales such as Tahiti, Fiji, Tonga, and Vanuatu. Much more than a travelogue, The Latitudes of Silence is a study in the pursuit of freedom, that subject that is at the core of the human spirit. This is world voyaging at its best-following the tracks of the great explorers and visionaries of the past.
